Since the beginning of the journal, it has always been CEF's aim to offer timely information to those interested in matters related to Social Law, and also, to offer this space as a means of sharing research papers and opinions from those who wish to contribute interesting and controversial topics.

Therefore, the Revista de Trabajo y Seguridad Social. CEF (RTSS. CEF) collects both doctrinal articles and articles that analyze the most relevant and recent court decisions.

In addition to research papers that make up the majority of the content of this publication, every year, we include award-winning studies from the Estudios Financieros Awards, including those of particular interest to the judges, from the Labour Law and Social Security, and Human Resources categories.

As well as all the above, subscription to the journal provides access to an informative, biweekly, bulletin where new legislation, caselaw, and collective agreements from the period are compiled, commented on, or reviewed.

The RTSS. CEF began its journey in 1988, publishing, from then until December 2021, on a monthly basis (12 issues in 11 volumes –the August and September issues are published in the same volume–). Since January 2022, its periodicity is bimonthly (6 issues).

With the purpose of making published papers in the journal more widely available, and recognising the importance of dissemination via the internet, CEF has also been offering, since April 2008, the option to consult content in a digital version:

<http://www.ceflegal.com/revista-trabajo-seguridad-social.htm>

The digital version makes available all the articles and case studies published since 1991, as well as offers an easy-to-use search tool to find specific studies, and acquire them in PDF format.

Up to issue number 300 (March 2008), articles available in the digital version correspond exactly to those in the printed version. As of issue 301 (April 2008), the volume of articles in the electronic journal are greater than that of the content in the printed version. This is due to the fact that some studies are exclusively available in the digital version, with only the summary and index available in the printed version.
